

Vacancy for the post of Project Coordinator and Social Worker

Tarasha is a field action project of the Centre for Health and Mental Health, School of Social Work, Tata Institute of Social Sciences, Mumbai, initiated in 2011. Tarasha is a community-based project that works with women living with mental illness, linking the three cornerstones of Psychosocial care and Self, Safe Shelters and Livelihoods. The project also helps care-givers of persons living with mental illness in Mumbai in relieving their burden through training and assigning student volunteers to care-giving families in the city of Mumbai. As part of the project's larger initiative towards making spaces mental health friendly, Tarasha orients college students around mental health to increase discourse and awareness and conduct workshops and sessions with corporate organizations towards making workspaces mental health-friendly by reducing stigma and discrimination around mental health.
